NIFTY – 24,471.70 (Daily Chart)

• In Tuesday's trading session, the Nifty opened on a negative note and remained under selling pressure throughout the session, resulting in a negative close.

• On a daily scale, the index has formed a strong bearish candle, leading to a breakdown of the horizontal support level, which is a cautious sign for the bulls. The RSI is gradually trending lower, indicating weakening momentum and increasing selling pressure. However, the positive takeaway for the bulls is that the index continues to trade above the 20 DEMA, which remains an important support level.

• For Wednesday's trading session, 24,430 will act as the initial support level, while on the higher end, 24,500 will act as the initial resistance level.

BANK NIFTY – 57,446.25 (Daily Chart)

• In Tuesday's trading session, the banking index opened on a negative note and remained under selling pressure during the initial hours. However, the index managed to recover from its intraday lows later in the session, helping it trim some of its losses, although it still closed in negative territory.

• On a daily scale, the index has formed a bearish candle with a lower wick, indicating buying interest and recovery from lower levels. However, the index failed to sustain above the 20 DEMA, which remains a concern for the bulls. The RSI is gradually trending lower, indicating weakening momentum. The index has been consolidating within the broad 55,890–58,705 range for the past two months. A decisive breakout on either side of this range will determine the next directional move.

• For Wednesday's trading session, 57,310 will act as the initial support level, while on the higher end, 57,570 will act as the initial resistance level.
